

May 15, 2008

General Manager, Sales and Marketing Director Named for AT&T Executive Education and Conference Center

AUSTIN, Texas—Ted Hibler, former general manager of the Omni Austin Hotel South Park, will be the general manager and Doug Copeland, former sales and marketing director at the Hilton Conference Center in Rockville, Md., the director of sales and marketing when the AT&T Executive Education and Conference Center at The University of Texas at Austin opens on Aug. 3.

A 30-year hospitality veteran, Hibler joined the project after five years as general manager at Omni Austin Hotel South Park.

“My job is to ensure a smooth transition from the pre-opening phase into an operating facility that focuses on my team, on the success of the business and the importance of our relationship with each guest,” Hibler said.

“I am committed to the mission set forth by The University of Texas at Austin for this project as an educational meeting resource for the Austin campus and UT System institutions,” Copeland said. “That core business is already enhanced by many outside clients whose needs are well-served by the center’s unique features and setting.”

The AT&T Executive Education and Conference Center at The University of Texas at Austin will provide a world-class residential learning environment with advanced technology and sophisticated hospitality. To learn more about the features of the meeting space, dining facilities, and guest rooms, visit www.meetatatexas.com.

For more information, contact: Sue Ellen Jackson, Marketing and Communications, 512-345-5259.